Dear Delegates:

We have all been told nothing is certain but change itself. Since March, it seems nothing is unchanged. Educators teach online or with packets; students learn at home; and school personnel prepare and hand out millions of meals for our students. We Zoom for interaction without physical contact or physical schools.

When things go back to normal, we cannot go back to our “old” normal. Our schools must be free of bullying, violence, and diseases. We must be better prepared with technology; internet for all students and training for teachers. Our students should not be stressed over state testing; instead the teachers should have time to make sure the students are college and career ready for the challenges ahead. Our education professionals should be respected and know that when they retire, they will receive the social security paid into by they or their partners.

In a time when so much is changing, it matters even more what does not change. Our students will also need us and remember us. We will always educate and advocate for our students and schools. I would be honored to advocate for you and our students at the National level. I humbly ask for your vote to be your next NEA Director – Place 2.

Sincerely,

Doris Hill
